大問4A Group presentation

メールを読み、次ページのQ23-Q25に答えなさい。

From: Aidan Norwick
To: Isabel Jones
Date: February 23
Subject: Group presentation

I hope you are doing well. I just wanted to remind you about our group presentation next week. You will first talk about the causes of climate change. Then, I will explain the effects in detail. Finally, you will provide some examples of what people can do in America to help the environment. Our presentation should be about ten minutes long, so we should keep our parts short and clear.

After our last meeting, I finished writing the notes for my part. I also made three slides to help explain my ideas today. You said you were working on your second slide last time. If you want, I can look at them and give you some ideas. You can also check my slides and share your opinions. We are making good progress, and there is only a little more work to do.

We should practice one more time before the presentation. Let's meet this Friday afternoon. So, we should send each other our slides by Thursday. Then, we can practice with perfect slides on Friday. That will help us be ready for the presentation. Please let me know if that time is not convenient for you. Although I won't be available this weekend, we can plan to meet at another time.

Animals That Improve the Environment

Beavers are animals that live in lakes and rivers in North America and Europe. When people hear about beavers, not many of them think about the help beavers give to the environment. In the past, the number of beavers became smaller because of human activities in various parts of the world. But today, experts say that bringing beavers back into nature can help protect the environment. Therefore, action has been taken to increase the number of them.

Beavers can bring many advantages. Riding Mountain National Park in Canada is a good example of the positive effects of beavers. In the park, beavers help reduce the risk of water problems. To protect themselves from other animals, beavers make dams, something similar to walls in rivers. Because their dams slow the flow of water, they can prevent natural disasters like floods. The dams also clean the water by removing harmful materials. This improves the quality of water.

Beavers also have a positive impact on wild animals thanks to their dams. Because their dams create places with healthier water that flows very slowly, they make great homes for other wild animals. For example, in one part of the United Kingdom, a study found that beavers created a nice environment for birds to live in. There are now more frogs and other species living there, too.

Some farmers think that there will be negative effects on food production if beavers are not controlled well. This is because beavers may eat crops like corn on farms. However, there is still the fact that they are a great help to nature. The British government has decided to introduce beavers back into the wild. So, the number of beavers will continue to grow in the future, while farmers hope that the animals will be controlled properly.
