Volunteer Work - Maplewood Park

Volunteer Work

Are you interested in volunteering? There will be an event on Sunday morning for students to clean up the local park. Recently, Maplewood Park has been dirty. Volunteers will pick up all the trash and throw it away.

There will be gloves for volunteers to use, and city staff members will prepare three trash cans. The red can will be for plastic bottles, the blue can will be for other plastic, and the yellow can will be for paper.

When: September 19, 10:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.

Where: Maplewood Park

The city staff will give lunch to all volunteers after cleaning. Volunteers should bring their own drinks.

(21) Which trash can will the volunteers throw away paper in?

- 1 The red one.
- 2 The green one.
- 3 The blue one.
- 4 The yellow one.

(22) What will the city staff do on September 19?

- 1 Sell cold drinks at a park.
- 2 Throw away old gloves.
- 3 Bring something to eat for the volunteers.
- 4 Buy colorful plastic bottles.

大問3B Learning Japanese

3通のメールを読み、後の設問に答えなさい。

From: Bryan Fox
To: Jill White
Date: June 18
Subject: Japanese

Hi Jill,
I want to ask you about something. As you know, the only languages we can study at our high school are Spanish, French, and German. You're studying French, right? I'm studying Spanish, but I actually want to study a different language. I really want to learn Japanese because I'm interested in Japanese culture. When I go to college, I want to study abroad in Japan for a year. I want to try judo while I'm there, too. Your aunt can speak Japanese, right? Can she teach me how to speak it?
Your friend,
Bryan

From: Jill White
To: Bryan Fox
Date: June 19
Subject: Sure!

Hello Bryan,
My aunt lived in Japan for 10 years. She lived in Hokkaido for three years. Then, she moved to Tokyo, and she lived there for seven years. She came back to the United States one year ago. She speaks Japanese very well, and she knows a lot about Japanese culture. I asked her, and she said that she could teach you Japanese. I gave her your phone number. She'll call you this week. I'm interested in Japanese comic books and TV shows, so I want to learn Japanese, too. Why don't we study it together?
Bye for now,
Jill

The Three Sisters

Around the world, people grow many kinds of vegetables. Growing vegetables can be difficult. It is sometimes hard to know how much sun and water they need. Native American people in North America have a traditional method for growing vegetables. It is called the "Three Sisters Method." The Three Sisters Method helps people to grow many vegetables in a small area.

In the Three Sisters Method, three different vegetables are grown together. The vegetables are corn, beans, and pumpkins. Native Americans have stories about these vegetables. According to them, the vegetables are "sisters." Corn is the oldest sister, beans are the middle sister, and pumpkins are the youngest sister. When Native Americans grow these vegetables, they plant corn first. Next, they plant beans, and they plant pumpkins last.

If people plant the corn first, the beans can use the corn plants to grow and get light from the sun. The pumpkins grow along the ground, so animals cannot go near the corn and beans easily. Pumpkins also have large leaves. They are important because they protect the area around the vegetables from the sun. Because of this, the ground does not become too dry. These three vegetables help each other to grow.

When Europeans went to North America in the 1600s, they took new plants and animals with them. Since then, the food that Native Americans eat has changed. However, many Native Americans and other farmers still use the Three Sisters Method today.
