From: Sophia Jones
To: Anna Jones
Date: September 25
Subject: Surprise!

Hi Mom,
How are you? My college life here is going well. I had a surprising experience last Monday! On that day, I met my old friend Mia in an art class at my college. Do you remember her? She went to the same junior high school as me, but then she moved to a different city four years ago. Last Friday and Saturday, we had lunch together at a restaurant. We had a good time, and it was very fun. I never thought Mia was at this college, too! By the way, I'll come home on October 20. Can you pick me up at Union Station at 5:00 p.m.?
Love,
Sophia

Subject: Great!

Hi Sophia,
Thanks for the great news! I remember Mia, and I'm glad to hear that you had a good time with her again! Say hi to her for me. When you and Mia were junior high school students, you often went to the library together. You always studied math with her there because she taught math well. You loved drawing pictures and playing sports, but you didn't like learning math very much. I have many great memories of you and Mia. On October 20, my work at the hospital won't finish early, so I can't pick you up at that time. Your dad will need to attend a meeting at his office that day, but his meeting will finish at 4:00 p.m., so he can pick you up at the station. We're excited to see you then!
Love,
Mom

La Tomatina

Buñol is a small town in Spain with a long history. Only around 10,000 people live in Buñol, and it is a peaceful town most of the year. However, for one day of the year, the number of people in the town increases by over 20,000. People from all over the world go to Buñol to celebrate a tomato festival called La Tomatina and throw tomatoes at each other.

La Tomatina began in an interesting way. In 1945, there was a parade happening in Buñol, and musicians were performing in the street. Some kids pushed a musician, and they stopped the parade. The musician got angry at the kids, and then someone threw a tomato. Many people started throwing tomatoes at each other. They had fun and tried to throw tomatoes again the next year. However, the government did not like this new event and stopped it for a while.

Many people in Buñol wanted to throw tomatoes, so the festival happened again in 1957. People from other countries heard about La Tomatina and wanted to try throwing tomatoes, too. Now, at La Tomatina, people throw a lot of tomatoes at each other for one hour. Many people wear white clothes. The color of their clothes changes because of the tomatoes.

Although La Tomatina is famous, some people do not think it is good because it is hard to clean up after the festival. Also, people throw away all of the tomatoes. Some people think it is better to eat the tomatoes and not throw them at each other.
